By International News Service

Peace talk and war action were mixed up today as the east African war crisis remained little changed.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told King George of England his government hoped an African peace proposal to France, and that economic sanctions are applied against Italy, but details of the basis for this hope remained vague.

While it was announced officially that Italy would withdraw a division of troops from the Egyptian-Libyan border, the Italian press launched a bitter attack upon both Britain and France for their moves to apply sanctions against Italy via the league.

Five men will begin work on installation of a new floor in the apparatus room at the fire department. These men will be under the supervision of W. M. Justus, city service director.

The Thompson road project in Deer creek-twp. and the removal of the belfry from High-st school will be started next week.

PRESIDENT FACES WAR DIFFICULTY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—The menacing situation in war clouded Europe occupied President Roosevelt's attention first today when he returned to the White House tanned and invigorated from a three week fishing cruise.

Secretary of State Hull was among the officials who met the presidential train at the station and later he lunched with Mr. Roosevelt. The two spent some time going over latest dispatches and developments arising from the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

MERCURY FALLS 43 DEGREES TO 30 MARK

The weatherman started his winter tempering process on city and county residents Thursday morning when he shoved the temperature down to 30 degrees.

The drop was 43 degrees under the Wednesday afternoon high of 73 degrees. A heavy frost went on the records of Dr. H. R. Clarke, local recorder.

Fair and warmer was forecast for Friday.

HURST SERIOUS

Carl Hurst, Williamsport beekeeper who fell from a tree suffering a broken vertebrae last July, is reported not so well. Mr. Hurst, whose life was despaired of, had been making a fair recovery from his injury but is believed to have suffered a relapse.

AGE PENSIONS NOW RECEIVED BY 671 HERE

Number of Persons Receiving Aid Increased by 11 During Month

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24—The number of recipients of old age pensions in Pickaway-co was boosted by 11 persons within the last month, according to a report issued today by Henry J. Berroddin, chief of the Division of Aid for the Aged.

The increase raises the county's old age pensions rolls to 671. Throughout the state, the number of awards was increased by 4,305 persons bringing the total of needy aged receiving pensions from the state to 84,344 persons.

Average Cost Higher

The general state average award was $15.13 a decrease of six cents from the previous month's average. In Pickaway-co the average payment was increased by nine cents to make the average award $12.63.

The increase was made possible, Mr. Berroddin said, by the additional grant of funds by the legislature. The new awards were made to persons whose applications had been approved both by county boards and by the central office of the pension department. A number of new applications have been received, the pension taken on them during the current month.

$8,476.50 Received

The state disbursed $1,275,986.00 during the past month for old age pensions. Of this sum, Pickaway-co recipients received a total of $8,476.50. There were 406 cancellations of pensions last month caused by deaths and the discovery of other means of support. Ninety-one burial claims were paid out, amounting to $5,140.50.

MAJOR BOWES UNIT NO. 6 BOOKED FOR CLIFTONA THEATRE

The management of the Cliftona Theatre today announced that it has secured Major Bowes Amateurs' On tour, unit No. 6, in person for one day, Sunday, Nov. 3.

These youthful entertainers, 22 in number, will appear on the stage in person.

They are all winners in the nation-wide quest for talent which is conducted on the radio every Sunday night by Major Bowes.

This is the first time that any of Major Bowes units has played in a town the size of Circleville.

Expelled from school for refusal to salute the United States flag, eight-year-old Carleton B. Nichols, Jr., extreme left, and Albert Miller, 15, center, now receive their tutoring by Edward Holton James, Harvard university graduate, author and lawyer, right, in the James home at Concord, Mass. Young Miller was expelled from the Arms academy for non-participation in flag ceremonies, and Nichols was dropped from a Lynn public school in a flag row which brought a $25 fine upon his father. The two youths refused to salute the flag for religious reasons, being members of a sect known as Jehovah's Witnesses, which makes obedience to the flag contrary to the tenets of their faith.

E. W. WEILER LOSES OFFER FOR MARION HIS SALES TAX JOB HOLDING EXPECTED

E. W. Weiler, Wait-st, is one of the 130 employees of the state sales tax division whose dismissal, effective Nov. 1, was announced Thursday by Tax Commissioner Carlton S. Dargusch. The dismissal of the employees will save the state about $375,000.

The move leaves the sales tax division with 398 employees, Dargusch said. The peak was reached in April when there were 551 names on the payroll.

Twenty employees will be dismissed because the civil service commission discovered they were not working at jobs for which they were certified; seven examiners will be dropped because their names do not appear on the certified civil service lists, and 49 others will lose their jobs because of their low civil service ranking.

The report stated Weiler's name failed to appear on the civil service lists.

OFFER REJECTED

NORWALK, Oct. 24—A new rate ordinance offered by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has been rejected by this city's council on the ground that "the offer is entirely too high."

NOTED TAP DANCER SAVED FROM DEATH

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24—Bill Robinson, noted colored tap dancer, was under the care of a physician today after he narrowly escaped drowning while filming a scene with John Boles, picture star.

Robinson and Boles were working in a picture with Shirley Temple, when Robinson, while swimming in a tank of water, submerged and was struck in the head by a log. Boles attempted to rescue Robinson but was near exhaustion when he was hauled from the water by studio employees who came to the aid of the stricken players.

WRECKED PLANE, POSSIBLY THAT OF FRENCHMEN, FOUND

EDMUNSTON, N. B., Oct. 24—

Somewhere on the fringe of old Quebec and northern New Brunswick, four rugged, but excited men, pushed their way by canoe and portage through rain and sleet today.

They are seeking to determine whether a wrecked and moss covered airplane found on lonely Gulamite mountain is the white bird, flown out over the Atlantic from Le Bourget, France, on May 8, 1927, by the French aces, Captain Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, in the first attempt to span the ocean from east to west.

The intrepid French flyers were never seen again after having been sighted over England.

Wreckage Located
Yesterday two French Canadian trappers, Will Levesque, and Theo-phile Reust, electrified this little pulp and lumber town with tidings
they had discovered an old wrecked airplane on Monday about 80 miles east of Edmundston in virgin forest on Mount Gulamite, south of Restigouche river.

From the outward appearance of the wreck, the trappers deduced it had lain there some eight or ten years.

Excited and not a little frightened, the simple trappers made a brief inspection of the wreckage which showed moss growing on the shattered wings, the engine half buried in the ground and rotting blankets strewn about. Then they headed back to civilization to report their discovery.

The men said they found no

SKUNKS PLENTIFUL— ASK RALPH, BYRON

Skunks will be plentiful for trappers this winter, according to Ralph Wallace, E. Union-st., and Byron Eby, N. Court-st.

The two men were giving their hunting dogs, two pointers and a setter, a workout west of the city late Wednesday afternoon.

They had raised some quail and pheasants and just as they were starting home all three of the dogs pointed one patch of brush. Wallace walked into the brush to scare
out the birds and found himself
the unwelcome stranger at a conference of five polecats. The skunks voted Wallace should remove his clothes before entering his home.

YOUTH KILLED, FOUR INJURED

Truck Carrying 10 CCC Boys Strikes Automobile of Dr.
E. T. Kirkendall

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24—One CCC
enrollee was killed and four other persons, including Dr. E. T. Kirkendall, Gahanna, were seriously injured in an auto crash near the city limits here today.

Joe Kapuste, Youngstown, was the CCC worker fatally injured
when a truck in which he and 11
other CCC youths were riding, crashed into Dr. Kirkendall's car which had stopped for a traffic signal.

Dr. Kirkendall, suffering severe head injuries and possibly a broken neck, was rushed to White Cross hospital, while the CCC workers were taken to the post hospital at Fort Hayes.

Names of the three CCC youths injured besides Kapuste who died enroute to the hospital were not immediately available, but the post commandant listed the names of Kapuste's 10 companions in the truck as follows:

James Boyd, Swanton; David
R. Evans, Pataskala; John Hawes, Kenia; Lester Heltrige, Worthington; Kenneth Holmes, Westerville; William Fern, Chillicothe;
Albert Laska, Cleveland; Dorra
Lehr, Geneva; Harry Shierey, Kalida, and James E. Wilson, Columbus.

Dr. Kirkendall's son, Tim, was riding with him and was injured,
but not seriously.

HOG PRICES DOWN ON LOCAL MARKET

Hog prices at the livestock sale
Wednesday showed approximately a 90-cent decrease under the prices of last week.

About 650 hogs were sold Wednesday with the prices ranging between $9.35 to $9.50. Few sold at $9.50. Last week the high was $10.25.

BIG STEER GONE

Durward Dowden, vice president and cashier of the Second National bank, told county officers this morning a black steer weighing about 600 pounds was missing from his father's farm west of the city.

gible for parole Dec. 1, prison officials revealed today.

CHILD ON WAY TO SCHOOL HIT; WOMAN IS HURT

Wilson Sowers, 7, Thrown to Pavement by Lancaster Man's Auto

NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

Mrs. William Amos Cut
About Face, Forehead.

Two pedestrians, one a 7-year-old school child, were injured
when struck by autos at downtown intersections in the last 24 hours.

Wilson Sowers, 7, son of Mr.
and Mrs. Kenneth Sowers, 209 W.
High-st., suffered severe bruises
about the face and legs and a ruptured blood vessel in his left leg
when struck by an auto at Court
and High-sts, Thursday morning.

Crossing Court-st

The child was crossing the street with his twin sister, Emma

when struck by a car driven by Ed Carney, Harrison-st, Lancaster, former Circleville barber. The children are in the first grade.

The driver told officers three children were crossing the street at the time he approached the intersection. He said the children were well across when the youth started back and walked into the side of his car striking the left rear fender. George Devore, Rt. 3,
and Paul Schriener, Fifth-ave,
Lancaster, were riding in the car.
The men came to Circleville to deliver brooms.

The boy was taken to Berger hospital by Walter Nelson, filling station proprietor, and Charles Kirkpatrick, an employee. He was removed to his home after an examination at the hospital and is under treatment of Dr. E. L.
Montgomery. There are seven children in the family.

Woman's Face Cut

Mrs. William Amos, S. Washington-st., was treated at Berger hospital for lacerations on the face
and bruises suffered when struck
by an auto at Court and Main-sts, Wednesday night. Four stitches were required to close a wound
on her forehead.

She was removed to the hospital
by Howard Rogers, Walnut-st, driver of the car.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos were crossing Court-st from the bank corner to Crist's store. She was treated by Dr. A. E. Austin.

Two youths, Bud Helwagen and Robert Funk, were struck on N.
Court-st Tuesday evening when they walked in front of the automobile driven by Bud Boggs of Kingston.

LOGAN, Oct. 24—When his automobile overturned last night
on route 31, five miles north of here, Leo Gref, 34, Athens, was killed and two companions seriously injured.

MT. VERNON, Oct. 24—Two men were killed in a grade crossing accident at Fredericktown,
north of here, last night. A Baltimore and Ohio fast freight train
rammed a car in which Munroe Tobin, 53, father of seven children,
and his son-in-law, George Champion, 21, were returning home
from a furniture factory where they worked. Both were killed and the car demolished.

HOUSE ADDS TO BUDGET FIGURES

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24—Failing to agree on a new appropriation bill
members of the House finance committee today added nearly a million dollars more to the measure in an effort to gain enough votes to report the bill out to the House for action next Tuesday.
Three sub-sections of the committee of 23 members spent most of the day revising appropriations for various state institutions and departments upward, increasing the total from the $900,000 boost over Gov. Martin L. Davey's vetoes to nearly $2,000,000 above the governor's total of $87,000,000.

Ras Seyum had launched a counter-offensive with a series of quick raids. Rains held up an expected major battle on the southern front.

It was denied in both Paris and London that Du Cuce had requested a postponement of league sanctions pending a war settlement.

LONDON, Oct. 24—Reuters news agency in a Paris dispatch said Premier Pierre Laval today communicated to Sir George Clerk, the British ambassador, a plan of Premier Benito Mussolini's for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Concessions Listed
If Du Cuce, Reuter's said, was understood to have proposed first, a system of concessions such as are employed in certain regions of China, and secondly that Italy's armed forces in Ethiopia be limited to a certain number, which would comprise a "police force."

In return for this, Italy demands disarmament of that part of Ethiopia where Emperor Haile Selassie is sovereign, meaning he will be allowed a regular army but that all Ethiopians not in that army be forbidden to have arms, Reuter's said.

Now that Italy has avenged the defeat at Aduwa nearly half a century ago there is nothing to mar the pristine brightness of her military escutcheon excepting her various disasters and disgraceful flights during the World war.

926 ELIGIBLE FOR WPA JOBS IN PICKAWAY

Only Two-Thirds Would Get Work If Entire List of Projects Approved

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24 — The WPA program for Ohio, as constituted now, even if funds are made available for all approved projects, will employ only 213,200 of the 334,621 eligible workers on relief at the present time, Charles C. Stillman, federal relief chief in Ohio, announced today.

The remaining approximate 122,000 so-called "employables" will gradually be absorbed on other federal works programs, he said.

A report covering a labor survey conducted by the Works Progress Administration showed that Pickaway-co had 926 eligible persons for jobs on WPA projects.

Approximately only two-thirds of this number will be hired on WPA projects even if the entire program gets under way. Unless the federal authorities provide for direct relief for November and the following months, county officials will have the burden of caring not only for all the "unemployables" but also for one-third of the eligibles for WPA work.

Mr. Stillman reiterated his conviction that a direct relief grant will be made for Ohio before the first of the month. No official word to that effect has come as yet from Washington.

The report listed 255,648 male and 78,973 female workers now on relief who are eligible for employment on projects. The statistics included 49,974 skilled workers and foremen; 89,659 semi-skilled workers and 56,717 unskilled workers. The balance was classified under professional, technical, domestic and other groups.

How is a rosette iron used? What kind of waffle batter should be used?

A rosette iron is a specially shaped iron which is dipped into hot fat, then into a thin waffle batter and back into hot fat for cooking the latter. The finished waffle will look like a lacy wheel. In using the rosette iron care must be taken to dip the hot iron in the batter only just to the rim of the iron. If the batter comes all around the iron it will be impossible to remove the rosette from the iron. Also, if the fat is too hot, and makes the iron too hot, the waffle will stick to the iron.

Here are the proportions to use for the proper consistency of your waffles:

- 2 eggs, beaten slightly
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 C. milk
- 1 C. flour
- 1/4 tsp. salt

Mix in the order given and beat until smooth (about 2 minutes). A little more flour may be used if needed, but the batter should be as light as possible.

My grape marmalade has failed to jell. Should I recook it adding pectin or can I add something to thicken it without reheating it?

The failure of your juice to thicken may be due to several factors, the proportion of sugar used, the acidity of your fruit, or the time of cooking. If you did not make your marmalade as follows, correct the procedure.

Wash grapes and remove stems. Press pulp from the skins. Cook the pulp and press through a sieve to remove the seeds. Add the juice to the pulp, measure this mixture and allow two-thirds as much sugar as fruit pulp. Cook the mixture until the skins are tender (about 20 minutes), or until the jelly stage is reached. Pour into hot, sterile jars and seal tightly at once.

If you believe that pectin is what your marmalade lacked, the reheating and addition of pectin either in apple juice or commercial pectin should thicken it. If the proportion of sugar and juice was not correct, the re-cooking with the required amounts of sugar used will produce the desired results.

What will I use to remove perspiration stains from washable fabrics? I have a uniform that is discolored, but soap and water do not seem to remove the stain.

Perspiration stains are acid in nature. They may be more easily removed by washing if one tablespoon of baking soda is added to every two gallons of wash water. This treatment is satisfactory for all washable fabrics.

Can you give me any suggestion about the best way to preserve cut flowers?

Place cut flowers in deep water and let them remain there for at least 2 hours before arranging them in vases. Keep cut flowers in as cool a place as possible. Always remove them to a cool room at night putting them in deep water with plenty of space around each stem. One teaspoon of soda added to the water freshens and revives the flowers.

Leader Growing Weaker in Hospital; Several Henchmen Slain in Gun Fight

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24 — Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, Fleggenheimer, 35, is growing steadily weaker, a bulletin issued at city hospital at 7:30 a. m., stated.

At the same time it was reported that Bernard Rosenkrantz, his surviving henchman, was in a critical condition. Attending physicians intimated the death of either man might occur at any moment.

Lying stark and cold on two marble slabs in the hospital were Otto Berman, 46, Schultz's pet body-guard, and Leo Frank, 46, another friend of the gang overlord.

Schultz, the last of these fabulous underworld kings spawned by the prohibition era to survive death or prison, was shot down by two killers in the Palace chop house, a dingy restaurant in the heart of downtown Newark after a furious battle.

The strange gunmen, who riddled the restaurant with a machine-gun and a shot-gun, escaped.

Newspapers were just being rushed to the street in the Times square area of New York when there was another murderous burst of fire in the white light district. Two more aides crumpled to the floor of a barbershop at 47th street and Seventh avenue, critically wounded.

The wholesale shootings dumfounded the metropolitan area.

Over the underworld grapevine sped the rumor that a powerful new gang, headed by an unknown master criminal, has set out to exterminate the entire Schultz mob, which has dominated the multi-million booze and gambling rackets of New York for a decade.

Night clubs emptied as underworld characters fled to cover and innocent patrons fled out of the way of possible new shootings.

A wide hunt for the Schultz assassins was launched immediately in Newark and throughout New Jersey.

New York police ordered a round-up of all persons known to have had any connection with Schultz.

DAVEY'S VOTE PLAN FAVORED

Early Assault On New Deal in State Blocked By Court's Action

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24 — The New Deal is safe from a premature political campaign assault in this pivotal state until President Roosevelt is ready to go before the voters with his plea for re-election. The state supreme court today refused to interfere with Gov. Martin L. Davey's plan to hold a special election next November to fill the congressional vacancy caused by the death Aug. 9 of Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus, one of this state's two congressmen-at-large.

In refusing a writ of mandamus, sought by Harry C. Armstrong, Columbus salesman, who sought to compel the governor to call the plebiscite immediately, the court held that it "is without authority to substitute its judgment for that of the governor and to exact the performance of a duty not imposed by law."

Early Assault On New Deal in State Blocked By Court's Action

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24 — The New Deal is safe from a premature political campaign assault in this pivotal state until President Roosevelt is ready to go before the voters with his plea for re-election. The state supreme court today refused to interfere with Gov. Martin L. Davey's plan to hold a special election next November to fill the congressional vacancy caused by the death Aug. 9 of Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus, one of this state's two congressmen-at-large.

In refusing a writ of mandamus, sought by Harry C. Armstrong, Columbus salesman, who sought to compel the governor to call the piebiscite immediately, the court held that it "is without authority to substitute its judgment for that of the governor and to exact the performance of a duty not imposed by law."

A SPREADING FOREST FIRE

THERE are still some incurably optimistic souls who look upon the situation in Europe as just another of those colonial wars that come so frequently in the history of nations and flicker out without producing any great change in the status quo. Unhappily for the peace of the world, however, this is not a Russian campaign or a tribal uprising. Even though the League of Nations is meeting its obligations in an admirable manner and 11 Duces' intimates are talking of peace with but little conquering accomplished, the potentials are those of disaster.

England realizes now that Italy is suffering from delusions of grandeur and that the acquisitive ambitions of Mussolini are not confined to Ethiopia. The ultimate objective is some of Britain's possessions in the East and the hope of acquiring them is a serious one, arising from the Italian belief that Great Britain has seen the days of her greatest power and that decadence is her destiny.

And so it is that the British admiralty, with a suddenness that has startled Europe, has ordered the chief units of the fleet to concentrate at the two ends of the Suez Canal, has rushed arms to Ethiopia, ordered families of all British soldiers at Malta and Aden in the Red Sea returned home at once and has warned Italy against dropping bombs on Addis Ababa or the important rail centre of Djibouti.

England's moves are warlike and so, too, for that matter is the spirit of English leaders. The least Italian aggression against her interests is certain to win Ethiopia at least one important ally.

But it is not alone on the African and European scenes that there are ominous rumblings of war. Japan and Russia, too, are having their border clashes and there are observers who say that the long anticipated second war between these two nations to decide the supremacy of the East is about to start.

The war spirit, indubitably, is abroad in the land, even though for many years have passed since a world which calls itself civilized killed up ten million dead as its tribute to the red god Mars.

One circumstance of the impending European conflict, at least, advantageous to the cause of America peace. It is brewing at a time when we can still remember the horrors of the last war, and beginning to discover its futility.

A Jersey judge has sentenced one man to 127 years and another 139, which makes it possible to give each a half century off for good behavior and still keep 'em quite a while.

Italy ready to pay price of Africa war, a headline says. This encouraging but our books show that she hasn't as yet reconciled herself to payment for her other war.

A Western scientist has developed a guinea pig with nineteen genes, an achievement which is not particularly valuable to the general public of the guinea pig.

It's tribute to the individuality of the Texas centennial who will be the champion. The immediate problem, then is to determine the identity of the champion.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A BAD ECHO

THERE is a right time and a right way to perform all acts in bridge. The players of today's hands made a third mistake in their manner of echoing, that with a little different distribution of cards might have just handed game to the declarer. As it was it cost the declarer an overtrick.

♠ J 7 6 2
♥ 7 6 3
♦ 8 7
♣ 10 7 6 2
♠ 10 8
♥ 8 4 2
♦ K 10 6 2
♣ A K 8 4
♠ A K Q 4 3
♥ A Q J 5
♦ A Q 5
♣ 5 3

Bidding went: South, 2-Spades;
North, 2-No Trumps; South, 3-
Spades; North, 3-Spades; South, 4-Spades, which he could barely have made against perfect defense.
The opening lead was the K of clubs. Declarer had shown a two-sided, or at least, a semi-two-sider,
making of 5 spades and 4 hearts,
and it most improbable that declarer held 3 losing clubs. Perhaps he held only a single club. If East led to club for a third round of suit, he should have done so by playing his Q, thus showing the J or no more. In either case next lead would have been a low club for East to win. But West made the serious blunder of playing his J to the first trick, plainly saying that he held no more, or else he held only a second low club

and wanted to ruff the third round.
Of course West led his A of clubs.
East completed his echo by playing the 9, then declarer ruffed the third round of clubs, thereby establishing the 10 in dummy.
In ruffing the third club led declarer had used his Q, to insure ability to twice enter dummy by means of the losing spades, assuming that the missing spades were not held 4-0 between defenders. The Ace and K of spades were led, dropping all opposing trumps. Dummy was put in with its J of spades. The good 10
of clubs afforded declarer an opportunity to discard his Q of diamonds.
A heart was led and the J held the trick. Dummy was put in with its last trump, and a second heart was led. The Q held the trick. The Ace of hearts dropped all outstanding cards of that suit, leaving declarer with a long heart and giving him his 4-odd contract. The last card held by declarer was the Ace of diamonds, giving him an overtrick, thanks to East's bad echo.
Of course South was very fortune-
ate to make 5-odd, through East's error. In fact he was fortunate to go game, as would have been the case had East not blundered. If West had happened to hold the missing K of hearts 4-odd would have resulted just the same, as both dummy and declarer would still have held a trump and only two clubs and one heart would have been lost.

The Romance Racket

CHAPTER 24

CAROL LAY awake far into that night listening to the voice she had overheard on her way upstairs. It must have been that of Alice Van Cleve, Horton's wife, whom she had not met. And she had said that it was "stupid" to engage Dr. Harding.
Once more Carol's suspicions took precedence over her reasoning. "That there was a plot about involving Miss Miranda she no longer doubted. And yet her fair mind argued with her suspicions until finally she fell into an exhausted sleep.

She rose in the morning and found that dark circles shadowed her eyes and her face was pale and wan. She had cold packs on her eyes and touched her cheeks with rouge. She did not want Mrs. Van Cleve on her first morning to find her looking as she did.

As she expected, Katie summoned
her to breakfast in the dining room.
"Mrs. Van Cleve, this is Miss Kennedy," Horton introduced her to the immensely groomed, slim, gray-haired and thin-lipped woman who sat at the head of the table. She acknowledged the introduction with the briefest of nods.

Carol sat between them and said
nothing.
"I returned late last night and I have not had an opportunity to see
you. How do you find her?" she asked when she had poured their coffee.

"Splendid," Carol said briefly. She was determined to say no more than was necessary.

"Does she seem to you to be . . .
quite . . . healthy?"
"Of course, I haven't known her for long," Carol played for time. "She eats well, sleeps well and seems to enjoy herself."

After Horton had left for his office,
Mrs. Van Cleve asked Carol to join her in the drawing room and sitting before her desk, she left Carol in silence as though she had been one of the maids before she resumed
their conversation.

She made a great show, Carol thought, of asking in detail about Miss Miranda's diet, her hours of rest and recreation. Then, minutely, she examined every bit of information
Carol could give her. How did Miss Miranda react to reading? To her motor trips? How did she spend her time at home? Had she said anything to Carol about her family?

The last question and its relative questions asked tactfully but Carol felt that she was examining her and not Miss Miranda.

All the forgotten prejudices against the Van Cleves—or at least Horton Van Cleve—that Carol had felt when she first saw him came back to her and she sat facing his wife. Once more the house felt ominous to her.
She thought that Mrs. Van Cleve looked her no better than she looked the other woman.

She felt that if it was something stronger—Mrs. Van Cleve resented her presence. But why? Was it because her presence in that household had been suggested by Dr. Harding? Or was it because she was a woman? Carol's thoughts were so busy that she did not notice
the emphasis on her husband's "stupidity" in engaging Dr. Harding.

And why should Mrs. Van Cleve object to Dr. Harding if her husband had been honest when he said
he had his aunt's interest at heart?
Why object to Dr. Harding whose reputation as an alienist was without question?
Carol had no time to find the answer to these questions that rose in her mind. She heeded all her wife about her while she was being interrupted.

After a few perfunctory questions,
Mrs. Van Cleve dismissed her but when Carol was half way to the door she called her back.
"Miss Van Cleve will not need you

Mrs. Van Cleve asked countless questions.

this morning," she said. "I shall spend the morning with her. We shall have many things to talk over.
I've missed her and I should like to be alone with her. If you have any errands to do, I'll arrange for the car for you."

"No, thank you," she said. "I will not require the car."
Carol had not on her white uniform for that interview. She went upstairs and changed into street clothes. She had a protective impulse to stop at Miss Miranda's room and assure her that she would return shortly and not to let anyone worry her in her absence but she was afraid that she would arouse Mrs. Van Cleve's suspicions and she had no desire to do that. Dr. Harding would be back in a day or two and she would tell him about it but she knew that then her duty would not be done.

She wanted to talk it over with some one. Owen? She thought of him but she knew she couldn't go to him. He would be the first to resent such a breach of ethics. She could not talk over Dr. Harding's case with any other doctor.

"Any other morning she would have been glad of the opportunity to spend it walking in the crisp breeze with her. This morning her mind was too full of trouble to think of anything but her own thoughts. She felt like a mother who has left her trusting child to the mercies of an unscrupulous governess."

It was one of those exhilarating
days and the sunlight shone brightly
on the shop windows already filled with red and green and Christmas holideys. Carol found that she had her checkbook with her, though that this was a good opportunity to get some of her Christmas shopping done. She began going over the list in her mind. Isabel, Mary, Beulah, one to Nanny in Scotland, three of the girls in the east, Kathy's . . .
Then she remembered for the first time since last night, the red-headed girl's remark that Kathy wasn't coming home. Did Owen know?

Owen! Owen! Owen! Couldn't
she ever get away from that? Carol jumped into a very large man with very large packages. She apologized and turned her thoughts back to the Christmas list.

For Isabel, something for her new home. For Mary she would get one of those hand-knitted lace negligees
like her own that Mary admired.

Beulah should have a bright red pocketbook with some money in it.
What should she get for Miss Sanford? The morning passed quickly and the business-like watch she had bought when she first went to Dr.
Harding told her lunch time was near.

Mrs. Van Cleve had said nothing about lunch and Carol was anxious to get back to Miranda. She had a feeling her presence was needed.
She hailed a taxi.

Carol's instinct was not wrong but instead of finding a worried charge
as she had expected, she found Miranda with high spots of color burning in her cheeks, a glint of battle in her eye.

"Alice, my nephew's wife, is back,"
she said when Carol came in. "She's gone to a luncheon somewhere, fortunately, and we can be alone. I don't like that woman. I never liked her and I can't see what my nephew ever saw in her. Not that he is what I call a man of great charm."

"Give been out trying to buy Christmas presents," Carol had no intention of discussing the family
with her charge.
"Christmas present?" A wily look came into Miranda's eyes. "That's very nice idea I've been waiting for!
Of course, that will give you a chance."

Carol didn't have the least idea
what chance Miss Van Cleve meant.
"Look here," Miranda dug deep into her knitting bag and took from
it a notebook. "Clippings fell from it.
Clippings of fashionable pictures.
[This is the collection I told you about. Take it to your room. Study them. These are the types of clothes
I want. And in the back are my measurements. There's plenty of money and I want you to spend it.
You can do your Christmas shopping
for me."

Carol felt an enormous pity rise in her. What would happen to this poor, deluded old lady with those two waiting relatives?

"My dear," Carol was arrested
sharply by the tones of Miranda's quiet voice. "Are you with them—
or with me? I have to know now."
"I'm . . . I'm with you," Carol didn't know why she committed herself or what it would lead to. She only knew that it was instinct and not pity that decided her. Miranda Van Cleve was as sane as she!

Touring New Dealers: Found FDR Leading in West But Not Unbeatable.

WASHINGTON—Here is the way Administrations who made the transcontinental trip with the President reported to him on the political situation:

Generally, west of Pennsylvania
—Roosevelt still in the lead but not unbeatable if opposed by Borah.

Ohio—outlook gloomy for Democrats because of fierce internal dissension among state factions
and botching of Relief handling.
Michigan—lost. The Republicans carried the state in 1934 despite the nation-wide New Deal landslide. They have gained ground steadily since.

Kentucky—likely to go Republican in next month's election, but the President, personally, is popular and on top.

Illinois—touch and go; but Roosevelt will have the edge provided the Chicago machine of Mayor Kelly will "come through."

Indiana—Still strongly pro-Roosevelt.

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, in the Roosevelt column.

Kansas—unshakably Republican.

Missouri—Democratic, thanks largely to the potent machine of Boss Pendergast.

California—New Deal has lost
some ground, but the President, personally, is still popular, and right now could carry the state easily.

Such Is Fame

Representative George Holden Tinkham, bearded, wealthy Boston blue-blood, has a sprinkling of Negro voters in his district. As a mark of appreciation for his legislative efforts on behalf of their race,
they made him an honorary officer of one of their organizations.

Some time, thereafter, a British magazine printed an article on American Negro societies with a page of pictures featuring "distinguished American Negroes."

OCTOBER'S PARTY

October gave a party;
The leaves by hundreds came—
The Chestnuts, Oaks, and Maples,
And leaves of every name.
The Sunshine spread a carpet,
And everything was grand.
Miss Weather led the dancing,
Professor Wind the band.

The Chestnuts came in yellow,
The Oaks in crimson dressed;
The lovely Misses Maple
In scarlet looked their best;
All balanced to their partners,
And gaily fluttered by;
The sight was like a rainbow
New fallen from the sky.

Then, in the rustic hollow,
At hide-and-seek they played,
The party closed at sundown,
And everybody stayed.
Professor Wind played louder;
They flew along the ground;
And then the party ended
In jolly "hands around."

Tennessee Feud

The new move to resurrect the NRA has started a good old-fashioned behind-the-scenes Tennessee feud.

Leaders of the feud are of old Tennessee stock. On one side is Major George L. Berry who, under the sonorous title of Coordinator of Industrial Recovery, is attempting to revive the NRA. On the other side is Judge Edwin L.
Davis, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who opposes that revival.

The feud chiefly is a matter of professional jealousy. It dates back to the very beginning of the NRA, when the Federal Trade Commission made no secret of its belief that the Blue Eagle never should have been born. Now that it is sunk, they want to keep it that way.

Also, Davis and his colleagues have a plan of their own for industrial regulation. What makes them particularly hot under the collar is that their program was just getting under way when Berry zoomed into the headlines with his scheme.

The proposal of the FTC-ers is nothing new. The Federal Trade act has always empowered the Commission to authorize voluntary fair-trade codes. But few industries took advantage of the opportunity.
Since the Supreme Court killed mandatory codes, however, scores of industries have turned to the FTC. More than 125 applications for voluntary codes are pending
before it.

The FTC feels that since the system of compulsory codes has failed, voluntary codes should be given a fair trial.

Ambitions

One thing about Rex Tugwell's
Rural Resettlement Administration
it does not lack ambition.

How to Give First Aid
In Gun-Shot Wound Case

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DURING HIS recent fishing trip
my friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, was the center of a great deal of attention
and questioning from companions and guides. In any emergency vacation because everybody seems to feel that when they have him away from his office where no charge can be made, it is a good time to get a little inside dope.

Some of the questions and answers
on this trip may be of universal interest.

One evening, around the campfire,
one of his companions said, "Doctor,
what would be the best emergency treatment that I could use if I were down here without a doctor on a trip
and someone had a gunshot wound
in the shoulder?"

"The best emergency treatment," Dr. Gibbs answered, "no matter of what kind or under what circumstances, is the simplest emergency treatment. In any gunshot injury
the first thing to consider and to combat is hemorrhage. The second is shock, and the third is possible infection."

Controlling Hemorrhage

"In the case that you postulate of gunshot injury of the shoulder, hemorrhage is not nearly so easy to control as it would be if the wound were in one of the limbs; in the latter case
a towel wrapped around the limb toward the body side of the injury and twisted tight (a tourniquet) would prevent hemorrhage. In the case of the gunshot injury in the shoulder

Only a few insiders know the story, but not long ago the NRA suddenly branched out into the business of administering Indian affairs. The venture was short-lived but lively. It happened this way:

While on a spending trip in New Mexico, Tugwell was much impressed by Joseph L. Dailey, a former judge and active figure in the state's political and social life.
Tugwell invited him to come to Washington and become a member of his staff.

Dailey accepted, later reported for duty, but found that Tugwell
had nothing definite for him to do.
For want of something better,
Tugwell finally hit on the ingenious idea of setting up an Indian Division and putting Dailey in charge.

He broached the idea to Harry Hopkins, pointing out that there are more than 10,000 homeless
Indians in the West. Tugwell argued that his NRA could use
the 40,000,000 acres of Indian lands held in trust by the Government to provide self-supporting homes for the impoverished Indians.

Hopkins gave his okay and promised a $15,000,000 grant from Work Relief funds.

Complications developed immediately.
John Collier, able, hard-working head of the long-established Indian Bureau, has been engaged in rehabilitating homeless Indians
ever since he has been on the job.
And he entered vigorous protest against duplication of effort. If $15,000,000 was to be handed out for this work, Collier demanded that the money be turned over to him.

Next it developed that Dailey,
although an able lawyer, knew nothing about Indians. Finally,
some of Hopkins's aides questioned
the project on technical grounds
and held up the allocation of funds.

Under this barrage of setbacks
Tugwell's bright idea blew up.

A SPREADING FOREST FIRE

THERE are still some incurably optimistic souls who look upon the situation in Europe as just another of those colonial wars that come so frequently in the history of nations and flicker out without producing any great change in the status quo. Unhappily for the peace of the world, however, this is not a Riffian campaign or a tribal uprising. Even though the League of Nations is meeting its obligations in an admirable manner and II Duce's intimates are talking of peace with but little conquering accomplished, the potentialities are those of disaster.

England realizes now that Italy is suffering from delusions of grandeur and that the acquisitive ambitions of Mussolini are not confined to Ethiopia. The ultimate objective is some of Britain's possessions in the East and the hope of acquiring them is a serious one, arising from the Italian belief that Great Britain has seen the days of her greatest power and that decadence is her destiny.

And so it is that the British admiralty, with a suddenness that has startled Europe, has ordered the chief units of the fleet to concentrate at the two ends of the Suez Canal, has rushed arms to Ethiopia, ordered families of all British soldiers at Malta and Aden on the Red Sea returned home at once and has warned Italy against dropping bombs on Addis Ababa or the important rail centre of Direwada.

England's moves are warlike and so, too, for that matter is the spirit of English leaders. The least Italian aggression against her interests is certain to win Ethiopia at least one important ally.

But it is not alone on the African and European scenes that there are ominous rumblings of war. Japan and Russia, too, are having their border clashes and there are observers who say that the long anticipated second war between these two nations to decide the supremacy of the East is about to start.

The war spirit, indubitably, is abroad in the land, even though not many years have passed since a world which calls itself civilized piled up ten million dead as its tribute to the red god Mars.

One circumstance of the impending European conflict, at least, is advantageous to the cause of America peace. It is brewing at a time when we can still remember the horrors of the last war, and are beginning to discover its futility.

The Romance Racket

MARIE BUZARD

CHAPTER 34

CAROL LAY awake far into that night hearing the voice she had overheard on her way upstairs. It must have been that of Alice Van Cleve, Horton's wife, whom she had not met. And she had said that it was "stupid" to engage Dr. Harding. Once more Carol's suspicions took precedence over her reasoning. That there was a plot afoot involving Miss Miranda she no longer doubted. And yet her fair mind argued with her suspicions until finally she fell into an exhausted sleep.

She rose in the morning and found that dark circles shadowed her eyes and her face was pale and wan. She laid cold packs on her eyes and touched her cheeks with rouge. She did not want Mrs. Van Cleve on her first meeting to find her looking as she did.

As she expected, Katie summoned her to breakfast in the dining room. "Mrs. Van Cleve, this is Miss Kennedy," Horton introduced her to the immaculately groomed, slim, gray-haired and thin-lipped woman who sat at the head of the table. She acknowledged the introduction with the briefest of nods.

Carol sat between them and said nothing.

"I returned late last night and I have not had an opportunity to see your aunt. How do you find her?" she asked when she had poured their coffee.

"Splendid," Carol said briefly. She was determined to say no more than was necessary.

"Does she seem to you to be . . . quite . . . healthy?"

"Of course, I haven't known her for long," Carol played for time. "She eats well, sleeps well and seems to enjoy herself."

After Horton had left for his office, Mrs. Van Cleve asked Carol to join her in the drawing room and, sitting before her desk, she left Carol in silence as though she had been one of the maids before she resumed their conversation.

She made a great show, Carol thought, of asking in detail about the Miranda's diet, her hours of rest and recreation. Then, minutely, she examined every bit of information Carol could give her. How did Miss Miranda react to reading? To her motor trips? How did she spend her time at home? Had she said anything to Carol about her family?

These questions and relative questions she asked tactfully but Carol felt that she was examining her and not Miss Miranda.

All the forgotten prejudices against the Van Cleves—or at least Horton Van Cleve—that Carol had felt when she first saw him came back to her as she sat facing his wife. Once more the house felt ominous to her. She thought that Mrs. Van Cleve liked her no better than she liked the other woman.

She felt that it was something stronger—Mrs. Van Cleve resented her presence. But why? Was it because her presence in that household had been suggested by Dr. Harding? Certainly she considered it Mrs. Van Cleve had been so emphatic about her husband's "stupidity" in engaging Dr. Harding, she must resent having his nurse there.

And why should Mrs. Van Cleve object to Dr. Harding if her husband had been honest when he said he had his aunt's interest at heart? Why object to Dr. Harding whose reputation as an alienist was without question?

Carol had no time to find the answer to these questions that rose in her mind. She needed all her wits about her while she was being interrogated.

After a few perfunctory questions, Mrs. Van Cleve dismissed her but when Carol was half way to the door she called her back.

"Miss Van Cleve will not need you here."

"Different" is what Hollywood said when it first saw Gene Raymond.

Strikingly blond, whereas most screen heroes must struggle along with brown or black hair; possessed of a buoyant, boyish vitality and great personal appeal, Raymond brought a distinct individuality to the screen. Audiences saw him and remembered.

Four years of screen work have failed to place him in any cinematic mold.

"Different" is still the verdict of film capital and film audiences on Raymond, who is currently appearing with Ann Southern in RKO Radio's new musical romance, "Hooray for Love."

Like Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, and a favored few other screen players, Raymond possesses versatility which make him equally at home in musical and "straight" productions. "Hooray for Love," his latest picture will be shown for the last time tonight at the Cliftona.

Mrs. Van Cleve asked countless questions.

this morning," she said. "I shall spend the morning with her. We shall have many things to talk over. I've missed her and I should like to be alone with her. If you have any errands to do, I'll arrange for the car for you."

"No, thank you," she said. "I will not require the car."

Carol had put on her white uniform for that interview. She went upstairs and changed into street clothes. She had a protective impulse to stop at Miss Miranda's room and assure her that she would return shortly and not to let anyone worry her in her absence but she was afraid that she would arouse Mrs. Van Cleve's suspicions and she had no desire to do that. Dr. Harding would be back in a day or two and she would tell him about it but she knew that then her duty would not be done.

She wanted to talk it over with some one. Owen? She thought of him but she knew she couldn't go to him. He would be the first to resent such a breach of ethics. She could not talk over Dr. Harding's case with any other doctor.

Any other morning she would have been glad of the opportunity to spend it walking in the crisp December air. This morning her mind was too filled with troubled thoughts. She felt like a mother who has left her trusting child to the mercies of an unscrupulous governess.

It was one of those exhilarating days and the sunlight shone brightly on the shop windows already filled with red and green and Christmas decorations. Carol, finding that she had her checkbook with her, thought that this was a good opportunity to get some of her Christmas shopping done. She began going over the list in her mind. Isabel, Mary, Beulah, one to Nanny in Scotland, three of the girls in the cast, Kathy.

Then she remembered for the first time since last night, the red-headed girl's remark that Kathy wasn't coming home. Did Owen know?

Owen! Owen! Owen! Couldn't she ever get away from that? Carol bumped into a very large man with very large packages. She apologized and turned her thoughts back to the Christmas list.

For Isabel, something for her new home. For Mary she would get one of those hand-knitted lace negligees like her own that Mary admired.

Touring New Dealers Found FDR Leading in West But Not Unbeatable.

WASHINGTON—Here is the way Administrationites who made the transcontinental trip with the President reported to him on the political situation:

Generally, west of Pennsylvania—Roosevelt still in the lead but not unbeatable, it is supposed by Borah.

Ohio—outlook gloomy for Democrats because of fierce internal dissension among state factions and botching of Relief handling. Michigan—lost. The Republicans carried the state in 1934 despite the nation-wide New Deal landslide. They have gained ground steadily since.

Kentucky—likely to go Republican in next month's election, but the President, personally, is popular and on top.

Illinois—touch and go; but Roosevelt will have the edge—provided the Chicago machine of Mayor Kelly will "come through."

Indiana—Still strongly pro-Roosevelt.

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa—in the Roosevelt column.

Kansas—unshakably Republican.

Missouri—Democratic, thanks largely to the potent machine of Boss Pendergast.

California—New Deal has lost some ground, but the President, personally, is still popular and right now could carry the state easily.

Such Is Fame

Representative George Holden Tinkham, bearded, wealthy Boston blue-blood, has a sprinkling of Negro voters in his district. As a mark of appreciation for his legislative efforts on behalf of their race, they made him an honorary officer of one of their organizations.

Some time, thereafter, a British magazine printed an article on American Negro societies with a page of pictures featuring "distinguished American Negroes."

OCTOBER'S PARTY

October gave a party; The leaves by hundreds came—The Chestnuts, Oaks, and Maples, And leaves of every name. The Sunshine spread a carpet, And everything was grand, Miss Weather led the dancing, Professor Wind the band.

The Chestnuts came in yellow, The Oaks in crimson dressed; The lovely Misses Maple In scarlet looked their best; All balanced to their partners, And gaily fluttered by; The sight was like a rainbow New fallen from the sky.

Then, in the rustic hollow, At hide-and-seek they played, The party closed at sundown, And everybody stayed. Professor Wind played louder; They flew along the ground; And then the party ended In jolly "hands around."

How to Give First Aid In Gun-Shot Wound Case

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DURING HIS recent fishing trip my friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, was the center of a great deal of attention and questioning from companions and guides. A doctor gets very little vacation because everybody seems to feel that when they have him away from his office where no charge can be made, it is a good time to get a little inside dope.

Some of the questions and answers on this trip may be of universal interest.

One evening, around the campfire, one of his companions said, "Doctor, what would be the best emergency treatment that I could use if I were down here without a doctor on a trip and someone had a gunshot wound in the shoulder?"

"The best emergency treatment," Dr. Gibbs answered, "no matter of what kind or under what circumstances, is the simplest emergency treatment. In any gunshot injury the first thing to consider and to combat is hemorrhage. The second is shock, and the third is possible infection."

Controlling Hemorrhage

"In the case that you postulate of gunshot injury of the shoulder, hemorrhage is not nearly so easy to control as it would be if the wound were in one of the limbs: in the latter case a towel wrapped around the limb toward the body side of the injury and twisted tight (a tourniquet) would prevent hemorrhage. In the case of the gunshot injury in the shoulder the best thing to do would be to stuff the wound with a towel or gauze or sheet. If there is severe hemorrhage it does not make any difference whether you have surgically clean gauze or not, because the primary thing is to stop the hemorrhage.

"For combating shock, the best thing is to have the injured person lie down on a cot, covered up well with blankets, use hot coffee and a moderate amount of whiskey. If available, pain is a contributing factor to shock, and the best amateur treatment for pain is again whiskey. "Prevention of infection, so far as emergency treatment is concerned, consists in dressing the wound with aseptic dressings. If you have no regular surgical gauze, a towel boiled in water and wrung out can be put into the wound and is as aseptic as anything."

"The important thing in most injuries of this kind, even after the acute period is over, is not to stir them up. The old days of probing for bullets are about over."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. About This And That In Many Sports

Who'll Bump Them

Many sports followers, some of them with authority, express the belief that Ohio State is going to be bumped this year, but by whom no one seems to be certain. The latest add to the "bump-in-off" list is Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, whose team felt the wrath of the Ohioans, 7 to 28 last Saturday.

Too Many Bumpers

Waldorf says Ohio has some weak points, that his tackles outplay Ohio's, but that his ends were far inferior, that Ohio's backs, especially Williams, were the weakest he has seen. However, he says Ohio's fullbacks are average. Several others have said the Schmittmen will be beaten, but they haven't named the time and place.

Maybe Notre Dame

Unless it is Notre Dame, this column can't see a team on the horizon capable of stopping the Bucks. The Irish are always something to contend with but even in this game we favor Ohio by a touchdown margin—Count Indiana and Chicago out of a chance to have the Bucks and you have Illinois and Michigan after Notre Dame has been met. The Illini will provide a test, we believe, as great as that of Notre Dame, while the Bucks have too many guns for Michigan. We also believe the same thing holds true for the Illini and even the Irish.

Stars Compared

Notre Dame has Shakespear, Carides and Layden as its outstanding men; Illinois has Lindberg and Spurgeon, Michigan has Renner, but Ohio has Williams, Boucher, Beltz, Antenucci, Dye and a bunch of others, we'd put on a par with the best their foes can offer.

Here's Suggestion

Here's a suggestion for the good of Circleville high school football: drop London, Chillicothe and Holy Rosary from the C. H. S. schedule next year and book Worthington, Grove City and New Lexington in their place. Something has got to be done to build up the morale of the high school youths and playing tough teams will not do it.

Soul Back $20,000

The OSU ticket office returned more than $20,000 last week to be ticket purchasers for the Notre Dame contest. The "no sale" sign is out. It may also hang for the Illinois contest two weeks later.

SCHMIDT SAYS INDIANA MAY SURPRISE OHIO

Buck Coach Fears McMillen's Team Though Defeated By Two Outfits

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24—Unexplainable fears which make football coaches, a few days before a game, look the part of a funeral procession, regardless of their teams' strength, today encircled Coach Francis Schmidt who, although not downright sad, was far from optimistic concerning his Ohio Staters in the impending Indiana game.

Although the Scarlet players have crushed three opponents on successive Saturdays, Schmidt declined to join the multitude in prognosticating Ohio's fourth triumph of the campaign against the Hoosiers who were mired 7 to 0 Saturday by Cincinnati's Bearcats and reversed by a similar count the week before by rejuvenated Michigan.

Losing Sleep

The Michigan and Cincinnati victories over Indiana are exactly what Mr. Schmidt is musing about and which, in part, offers some explanation for the very disparaging illusions which have been depriving him of many winks of sleep the last few days.

"That's just the trouble," Schmidt exploded, "that Indiana crew has run up plenty of yardage in those games but couldn't score."

"In the Michigan game, Indiana gained almost three times the ground of the Wolverines and against Cincinnati the Hoosiers made 13 first downs against one for the Bearcats," he continued.

"That's just the point I'm coming to. Indiana has proven it has the power but hasn't been able to cash in on it and I'm afraid that if the Hoosiers reach the turning point against our boys, it will prove a mighty sad Indiana trip for us."

Among Schmidt's other worries is the fact that he believes that McMillen didn't completely open his bag of tricks in the Cincinnati game. Just as a precautionary measure, the Buck coach has given his warriors some very lengthy workouts on defensive tactics.

Although Indiana hasn't done much with its famed "five-man" backfield, the Ohio mentor has thoroughly notified his charges of the intricacies of such an offense. Indiana's biggest backfield threat is Vernon Hoffman, a 195-pound quarterback, and Wendell Walker, left halfback, who scales around 100 pounds. Hoffman, once started, is a real triple-threat performer while Walker's running ability is widely-known throughout Big Ten circles.

Forecast: Illinois to Beat Iowa Unless It Rains, Notre Dame to Defeat Navy

By HARRY KIPKE
Football Coach, University of Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 24—When next Saturday evening rolls around the annual Western conference championship shuffle will be ready for a new deal and that new deal will find several of the present aces reduced considerably in value. In other words the elimination process will be in full swing, with four games bringing together eight of the home league teams.

The big game from the point of interest will be the clash down at Urbana, where Iowa will be the invading eleven. Both these outfits took a day off last Saturday, getting ready for the game which—barring a tie—will eliminate one of them from championship consideration. Each team will go into the battle full of confidence, the Illini spurred on by their great triumph over Southern California, and the Hawkeyes keyed up by what they did to the fine Colgate eleven on the same day.

Simmons vs. Spurgeon

It will be the speed of Simmons pitted against the fleet-footedness of Lowell Spurgeon, with Iowa throwing the power of Captain Crayne as a sort of extra. Illinois will be praying for a dry field, essential to the successful execution of its type of play.

It may seem rather strange to pick Illinois in view of its opening game defeat, but Zupke has evidently persuaded his boys to forget that incident completely. If Captain Lindberg gets back into the game he should sway the fortunes of battle all the more toward the Illini.

Ohio State should meet little opposition to its title march in the Indiana game. This Hoosier eleven, labeled as a possible "surprise" team in the early days, has faded before the onslaughts of our own Wolverines and the strong Cincinnati team.

Breather for Gophers

Minnesota, playing in its own backyard, will shove the hapless Wildcats farther into the conference cellar when the Gophers entertain Northwestern at Minneapolis.

Wisconsin, smarting under four successive defeats, journeys to Chicago to meet the Maroons. Chicago is now out of the title race, but still has a chance to salvage much from the season. And a Wisconsin scalp will help save the wounds of the Purdue game.

The two Big Ten teams which will play outside their own circle will be Purdue and Michigan. Purdue can enhance its present high prestige by beating the Scots from Ann Arbor. It's going to be a great ball game, that's sure, for Carnegie showed it has plenty of stuff when it lost its close battle with Notre Dame. But Purdue has proved its class too, with victories and victories are what count in the final summing up. There probably will be a lot of people who will string along with Carnegie for this game, but I have a hunch that Noble Kizer's boys will come out on top. And I don't think that this impression is prompted entirely.

ly by a friendly feeling for a colleague in the Western conference.

You Pick This One

Our boys at Ann Arbor are going to journey east for the first time since our last Princeton victory in 1932, this time to take on a brand new opponent in Columbia university.

Our boys have gained a lot of confidence from their victories over Indiana and Wisconsin. Coming out on top always helps a bunch of youngsters, and that is what we have at Ann Arbor this year. There isn't much on which to base a prediction on this game, for bases of comparison are woefully lacking.

One of the big boys of the mid-west unexpectedly took it on the chin last Saturday when Michigan State lost to Boston college. A lot of us thought that these State fellows would go through the season without a defeat. State showed almost midseason development in its game with us at the start of our schedule, and that probably explains what happened to them in the east. They were stale. Then, too, they probably were a bit overconfident. The defeat which Boston college handed out won't work to the benefit of Washington university, so I pick Michigan State to beat the Washington eleven handily next Saturday.

And finally, there will be the big game at Baltimore, with the Navy as host to a Notre Dame eleven still undated and rarin' to go right along at that pace. Navy showed us real class in the Yale game on Saturday, just as everyone expected and even in defeat looked mighty good. But Notre Dame is good too, awfully good, and with the victory habit should make the Middles their next victim.

Irish Star Is Ready For Navy

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 24—Optimism bloomed on the Notre Dame campus today with the announcement the injured Mike Layden, star halfback, will be ready to play against Navy at Baltimore Saturday, despite the pessimism of his big brother, Coach Elmer Layden.

The Irish tutor is fearful his team reached its peak in winning over Pitt last week, and that Navy, with the bitter taste of a point-after-touchdown defeat by Yale last week, will reach its peak Saturday.

But Navy's 7 to 0 victory in 1933, and 1 to 6 last year ramble in the hearts of the Irish. And in practice this week they appeared to be keyed for the Middles, despite Layden's gloom. Too, they have a winning streak of seven games to protect—the final three game of last fall and Kansas, Carnegie, Wisconsin and Pitt this year.

The Notre Dame squad will entrain this afternoon for Washington, D. C., where it will practice at Griffith Stadium tomorrow. The team will remain in Washington overnight, leaving for Baltimore two hours before game time.

Yesterday the Irish scrimmaged against Navy plays as demonstrated by the frosh, with the concentration on a hapless youngster impersonating Schmidt, Navy's star back.

TECH WILL PASS

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24—The Carnegie Tech Skibos today prepared to entrain to the mid-west where the powerful Purdue Boilermakers will play hostilities Saturday. Realizing the practical futility in trying to smash through the Purdue line, Coach Howard Harper has been drilling his boys in the art of forward passing with the hopes of breaking the jinx of a three game losing streak.

Coach Jack Landrum expected to have his boys at full strength for the east Columbus outfit. Bexley is fast and hard-hitting but not so powerful, according to persons who have seen the team in action.

SUTHERLAND CONFIDENT

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24—Coach Jock Sutherland will not use his best combination of Pitt Panthers for the Saturday tilt with the undefeated Penn State Lions, it was indicated today. With a stiff schedule in the horizon beyond Saturday, Jock will not unnecessarily expose his stars to possible injuries and will probably use many second stringers to combat the little feared Nittany Lions.

WINTER GOLF SCHOOL SURE

Membership Cards Placed in Hands of Committeemen; to Open Nov. 4

Plans are progressing for opening of the golf school and recreation parlors in the Bales building, E. Main-st., on Monday, Nov. 4. Emil Hrobon, Pickaway Country club professional, will be in charge of the school.

Many diversions will be offered persons who join the winter school and an interesting program is promised.

Membership cards have been placed in the hands of a number of Pickaway Country club members.

CHEVROLETS WIN 3 GAMES IN ROW

Only one member of the Mykrantz drug team was able to tally 500 pins while only a single member of the Chevrolets was below that mark, and who do you suppose won three games in the city league Wednesday evening? The Chevrolets, of course. They took the first by only three pins with Lou Vining's 229 making the saving awfully tough. The second was easy, 926 to 801 and the third was taken comfortably by 862 to 825.

The scores:

Chevrolets—2,633
Mykrantz—2,468
Vining	229
Mykrantz	129

MACK SCOFFS AT SALE OF PLAYERS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24—Connie Mack today denied a story he was ready to sell the few worthwhile players the Athletics have.

Commenting on the report that Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, had made him an offer in New York over the weekend, Mack said, emphatically:

"I made no deals or even had any new ones under way during my stay in New York. In fact, I saw no baseball men at all while I was there."

"I am pretty well convinced that I am not going to make any trades or sales of players during the off season. I think that every one of my regulars, including Jimmy Fox, Roger Cramer, Eric McNair and Frank Higgins, will still be in Athletic uniform next year."

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY

Clean Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes
Nature, in over 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters in your kidneys to strain the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.
When the passing of water is scanty, with smarting and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may not be flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.
If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up some of these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and help the kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Insist on Doan's Pills.

PRINCETON, ARIZ.

WEST POINT, N. Y. After a 30-year lapse in relations with Princeton, the two academies will play the Tigers again. It was announced here today by athletic authorities. They met again in 1904 and 1907, with Yale facing Army in the odd-numbered years.

PITTS SIGNS UP

OSSINING, N. Y., Oct. 24—Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts, ex-Sing Sing grid star, has signed for eight games with the New Rochelle Bulldogs, professional football team. Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced today.

About This And That In Many Sports

Who'll Bump Them

Many sports followers, some of them with authority, express the belief that Ohio State is going to be bumped this year, but by whom no one seems to be certain. The latest addict to the "bump-in-off" belief is Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, whose team felt the wrath of the Ohioans, 7 to 25 last Saturday.

Too Many Runners

Waldorf says Ohio has some weak points, that his tackle outplayed Ohio's, but that his ends were far inferior, that Ohio's backs, especially Williams, were the sweetest he has seen. However, he says Ohio's fullbacks are average. Several others have said the Schmidtmen will be beaten, but they haven't named the time and place.

Maybe Notre Dame

Unless it is Notre Dame, this column can't see a team on the horizon capable of stopping the Bucks. The Irish are always something to contend with but even in this game we favor Ohio by a touchdown margin—Count Indiana and Chicago out of a chance to have the Bucks and you have Illinois and Michigan after Notre Dame has been met. The Illini will provide a test, we believe, as great as that of Notre Dame, while the Bucks have too many guns for Michigan. We also believe the same thing holds true for the Illini and even the Irish.

Stars Compared

Notre Dame has Shakespear, Carideo and Layden as its outstanding men; Illinois has Lindberg and Spurgeon, Michigan has Renner, but Ohio has Williams, Boucher, Beltz, Antenucci, Dye and a bunch of others, we'd put on a par with the best their foes can offer.

Here's Suggestion

Here's a suggestion for the good of Circleville high school football: drop London, Chillicothe and Holy Rosary from the C. H. S. schedule next year and book Worthington, Grove City and New Lexington in their place. Something has got to be done to build up the morale of the high school youths and playing tough teams will not do it.

Send Back $20,000

The OSU ticket office returned more than $20,000 last week to the ticket purchasers for the Notre Dame contest. The "no sale" sign is out. It may also hang for the Illinois contest two weeks later.

SCHMIDT SAYS INDIANA MAY SURPRISE OHIO

Buck Coach Fears McMillen's Team Though Defeated By Two Outfits

COLUMBUS, Oct. 24—Unexplainable fears which make football coaches, a few days before a game, look the part of a funeral procession, regardless of their teams' strength, today encircled Coach Francis Schmidt who, although not downright sad, was far from optimistic concerning his Ohio Staters in the impending Indiana game.

Although the Scarlet players have crushed three opponents on successive Saturdays, Schmidt declined to join the multitude in prognosticating Ohio's fourth triumph of the campaign against the Hoosiers who were mired 7 to 0 Saturday by Cincinnati's Bearcats and reversed by a similar count the week before by rejuvenated Michigan.

Losing Sleep

The Michigan and Cincinnati victories over Indiana are exactly what Mr. Schmidt is mope about and which, in part, offers some explanation for the very dispiriting illusions which have been depriving him of many winks of sleep the last few days.

"That's just the trouble," Schmidt exploded, "that Indiana crew has run up plenty of yardage in those games but couldn't score."

"In the Michigan game, Indiana gained almost three times the ground of the Wolverines and against Cincinnati the Hoosiers made 13 first downs against one for the Bearcats," he continued.

"That's just the point I'm coming to. Indiana has proven it has the power but hasn't been able to cash in on it and I'm afraid that if the Hoosiers reach the turning point against our boys, it will prove a mighty sad Indiana trip for us."

Among Schmidt's other worries is the fact that he believes that McMillen didn't completely open his bag of tricks in the Cincinnati game. Just as a precautionary measure, the Buck coach has given his warriors some very lengthy workouts on defensive tactics.

Although Indiana hasn't done much with its famed "five-man" backfield, the Ohio mentor has thoroughly notified his charges of the intricacies of such an offense. Indiana's biggest backfield threats are Vernon Hoffman, a 195-pound quarterback, and Wendell Walker, left halfback, who scales around 190 pounds. Hoffman, once started, is a real triple-threat performer while Walker's running ability is widely-known throughout Big Ten circles.

Forecast: Illinois to Beat Iowa Unless It Rains, Notre Dame to Defeat Navy

By HARRY KIPKE Football Coach, University of Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 24—When next Saturday evening rolls around the annual Western conference championship shuffle will be ready for a new deal and that new deal will find several of the present acres reduced considerably in value. In other words the elimination process will be in full swing, with four games bringing together eight of the home league teams.

The big game from the point of interest will be the clash down at Urbana, where Iowa will be the invading eleven. Both these outfits took a day off last Saturday, getting ready for the game which—barring a tie—will eliminate one of them from championship consideration. Each team will go into the battle full of confidence, the Illini spurred on by their great triumph over Southern California, and the Hawkeyes keyed up by what they did to the fine Colgate eleven on the same day.

Simmons vs. Spurgeon

It will be the speed of Simmons pitted against the fleet-footedness of Lowell Spurgeon, with Iowa throwing the power of Captain Crayne as a sort of extra. Illinois will be praying for a dry field, essential to the successful execution of its type of play.

It may seem rather strange to pick Illinois in view of its opening game defeat, but Zuppke has evidently persuaded his boys to forget that incident completely. If Captain Lindberg gets back into the game he should sway the fortunes of battle all the more toward the Illini.

Ohio State should meet little opposition to its title march in the Indiana team. This Hoosier eleven, labeled as a possible "surprise" team in the early days, has faded before the onslaughts of our own Wolverines and the strong Cincinnati team.

Breather for Gophers

Minnesota, playing in its own backyard, will shove the hapless Wildcats farther into the conference cellar when the Gophers entertain Northwestern at Minneapolis.

Wisconsin, smarting under four successive defeats, journeys to Chicago to meet the Maroons. Chicago is now out of the title race, but still has a chance to salvage much from the season. And a Wisconsin scalp will help save the wounds of the Purdue game.

The two Big Ten teams which will play outside their own circle will be Purdue and Michigan. Purdue can enhance its present high prestige by beating the Scots from Ann Arbor. It's going to be a great ball game, that's sure, for Carnegie showed it has plenty of stuff when it lost its close battle with Notre Dame. But Purdue has proved its class too, with victories—and victories are what count in the final summing up. There probably will be a lot of people who will string along with Carnegie for this game, but I have a hunch that Noble Kizer's boys will come out on top. And I don't think that this impression is prompted entirely by a friendly feeling for a colleague in the Western conference.

You Pick This One

Our boys at Ann Arbor are going to journey east for the first time since our last Princeton victory in 1932, this time to take on a brand new opponent in Columbia university.

Our boys have gained a lot of confidence from their victories over Indiana and Wisconsin. Coming out on top always helps a bunch of youngsters, and that is what we have at Ann Arbor this year. There isn't much on which to base a prediction on this game, for bases of comparison are woefully lacking.

One of the big boys of the middle west unexpectedly took it on the chin last Saturday when Michigan State lost to Boston college. A lot of us thought that those State fellows would go through the season without a defeat. State showed almost midseason development in its game with us at the start of our schedule, and that probably explains what happened to them in the east. They were stale. Then, too, they probably were a bit overconfident. The defeat which Boston college handed out won't work to the benefit of Washington university, so I pick Michigan State to beat the Washington eleven handily next Saturday.

And finally, there will be the big game at Baltimore, with the Navy as host to a Notre Dame eleven still undefeated and rarin' to go right along at that pace. Navy showed us real class in the Yale game on Saturday, just as everyone expected, and even in defeat looked mighty good. But Notre Dame is good too, awfully good, and with the victory habit should make the Middles their next victim.

Irish Star Is Ready For Navy

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 24—Optimism bloomed on the Notre Dame campus today with the announcement the injured Mike Layden, star halfback, will be ready to play against Navy at Baltimore Saturday, despite the pessimism of his big brother, Coach Elmer Layden.

The Irish tutor is fearful his team reached its peak in winning over Pitt last week, and that Navy, with the bitter taste of a point-after-touchdown defeat by Yale last week, will reach its peak Saturday.

But Navy's 7 to 0 victory in 1933, and 10 to 6 last year rankle in the hearts of the Irish. And in practice this week they appeared to be keyed for the Middles, despite Layden's gloom. Too, they have a winning streak of seven games to protect—the final three game of last fall and Kansas, Carnegie, Wisconsin and Pitt this year.

The Notre Dame squad will entrain this afternoon for Washington, D. C., where it will practice at Griffith Stadium tomorrow. The team will remain in Washington overnight, leaving for Baltimore two hours before game time.

Yesterday the Irish scrimmaged against Navy plays as demonstrated by the frosh, with the concentration on a hapless youngster impersonating Schmidt, Navy's star back.

TECH WILL PASS

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24—The Carnegie Tech Skibos today prepared to entrain to the mid-west where the powerful Purdue Boilermakers will play host this Saturday. Realizing the practical utility in trying to smash through the Purdue line, Coach Howard Harper has been drilling his boys in the art of forward passing with the hopes of breaking the jinx of a three game losing streak.

The Stooze club and a large crowd of students accompanied the high school football team to Bexley today to witness the Central Buckeye encounter. The game was scheduled at 3:15 with the Red and Black trying to break its losing streak.

Coach Jack Landrum expected to have his boys at full strength for the east Columbus outfit. Bexley is fast and hard-hitting but not so powerful, according to persons who have seen the team in action.

Gabby, This is Roan Horse—our star Indian back. I want to see how well you tackle—get out there and stop him!

By William Ritt and Joe King

JUST RELAX, KID!

W-W-WHAT D-DID Y-YOU S-SAY H-HIS N-NAME W-WAS?

ROAN HORSE—WHY?

NOW—NOW I KNOW WHAT THAT POME-MAKER MEANT WHEN HE WROTE 'THE CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE'!

HEY! WHAT'S THE IDEA OF LEAPIN' AROUND? YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO BE PARALYZED.

HA HA HAW!

TRYIN' TO BAMBOOZLE THE COURT—EH?

I'M SORRY, YOUR HONOR, BUT SOME-BODY SHOCKED ME! THEY PUT ELECTRIC WIRES IN THAT CHAIR!

WE'LL YOU'RE IN FOR A BIGGER SHOCK! WE'RE THROWING YOUR CASE OUT OF COURT—AND YOU WITH IT!

OH, BOY!! WEYON! THAT WAS A SWEET IDEA OF YOURS!

LET'S CELEBRATE!

YEAR—IN THIS RACKET YA GOTTA KEEP COOL—NEVER GET EXCITED BE CALM AND NONCHALANT

WELL—HANG IT EASY ON THIS WET PAVEMENT

EEK! WE'RE SKIDDING!

LET'S SEE YOU BE CALM AND NONCHALANT NOW! WHY NOT?

A SET OF CHAINS, PLEASE

CHAINS $2.00 SET

POLICE CAR

LOOK HERE, NOW! IF YOU'RE GOING DOWN TO THE RIVER WITH ME YOU'VE GOT TO REMEMBER ONE THING!

WHAT? WHAT HAVE I GOT TO REMEMBER?

TO STICK CLOSE TO ME AND NOT GO FOOLIN' AROUND AS YOU ALWAYS DO AND GETTING INTO TROUBLE

AWH-H!

IT'S ALL RIGHT TO GO 'AWH' BUT THIS RIVER HAS STEEP BANKS AND I KNOW YOU AND WHAT YOU CAN DO 'THOUT TRYIN'!

WA-AL!

AND DON'T 'WA-AL' ME, EITHER! I DON'T WANT TO HAVE TO BE FISHING YOU OUT OF THE WATER! COME ON NOW, AND WATCH YOURSELF!

ALL RIGHT! ALL RIGHT! I TELL YA!

HEY! GO EASY, SPEEDY! THIS IS A BAD HILL!

SPEEDY!! SLOW DOWN, I SAY!

HEY!! LET GO!! I CAN'T SLOW DOWN—WE HAVEN'T ANY BRAKES!

OH, M'GOSH! YOU DON'T MEAN TO SAY—

AW, BE QUIET! YA DON'T HAVE TO WORRY—

THE HORN'S ALL RIGHT!

BRICK! YOUR POOR FEET AND HANDS!

I'M ALL RIGHT JUNE!

THEY'RE BRINGING HALFDAN HERE

YOU WON FAIRLY, BRADFORD—I AM NOW YOUR VASSAL

NONSENSE, HALFDAN—I SET YOU FREE—I WANT NO SLAVES!

PRINCE HAROLD, THE HOLMGANG DUEL IS SOON TO START—

TOO BAD, BRADFORD! YOU CANNOT PARTICIPATE AS YOU PLANNED.

OF COURSE, I AM FIGHTING IN THE DUEL—HAROLD GIVE ME SOME FELT BOOTS AND GLOVES SO THE CROWD WILL NOT SEE MY BANDAGES!

BRADFORD, YOU ARE THE BRAVEST OF ALL MEN!

WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU GIRL?

READ THIS!

THIS CALLS FOR FOUR PILLS!

WE'LL LET'S HAVE EM!

HERE THEY ARE! I'LL PUT THEM IN A BOX FOR YOU?

CERTAINLY! PUT EM IN A BOX

DO YOU THINK IM GONNA ROLL EM HOME?

trace of human bodies or skeletons near the wreck.

Leave For Scene—As soon as the pair had told their story here, two crack Royal Canadian mounted police officers were assigned to accompany them to the wreck. The four set out immediately.

Mr. Farley is irritated by the reports that he is about to resign, but will doubtless realize as the years go by that they go with the office, and will learn to accept them philosophically.

SALE! CARD TABLES

STYLE No 1 $1.95

Other styles $2.95 and $3.95

See these and you'll know why Samson tables have taken the country by storm!

You can stand on them—you can place hot dishes or wet glasses on them—spill boiling water or liquor on them... It's all in the day's work to a Samson bridge table.

No other card table has all of these unusual features!

- Double locking, non-rustable hinges—will not fold up accidentally.
- Tops with modern rounded edges—steel corners!
- Every top washable!
- Thirty-inch, extra large tops—larger playing surface!

Not an ordinary card table—For general use these tables will come in handy.
